BURJ AL ARAB

Source: www.kuoni.co.uk

At 321 meters (1,053 feet) it is the third tallest hotel in the world.

It stands on an artificial island 280 meters (920 feet) from Jumeirah beach and is connected to the mainland by a private curving bridge.

The shape of the structure is designed to mimic the sail of a ship.

It is one of the most luxurious hotels to stay in.
It has been called “The World’s Only 7 Star Hotel”.

Approximately 1,790 square meters (19,270 square feet) of 24-carat gold leaf was used to embellish the interior.

It is one of the most expensive hotels in the world to stay in.

The Burj Al Arab’s atrium is the world’s tallest, measuring 180 meters (600 feet) high.

As we transition towards the end of the year, more and more people are looking forward to winter's seasonal leisure activities, especially with COVID restrictions & the mask mandate now eased. This has spurred the demand for tourism in the UAE and made outdoor recreational plans more feasible.

With the temperatures dropping, December till February end is the ideal time to visit Dubai UAE, as the weather is pleasant, and best suited for sightseeing. Some of these options include desert camping, a road trip to the stunning Umm Al Quwain coast, or a pleasant retreat to Ras Al Khaimah's luxurious Long beach Campground..

You could even hop onto an Abra and explore Old Dubai, stroll through the Palm Jumeirah Boardwalk, plan a picnic with family & friends at Al Barsha Pond Park, or indulge in a kayaking expedition in the serene Hatta Dam. In the beautiful, bustling UAE, the explorative possibilities are endless.

Nationals and residents of the UAE planning outbound holidays to foreign destinations, they may choose destinations as highlighting our magazine or yet to be highlighted and off course enjoying the seasonal shopping for their family and friends may be a life time souvenir for many of them?

Wishing safe travels & a pleasant holiday to all our readers!

BURJ AL ARAB

In the city of Dubai, United Arab Emirates, there is a luxurious hotel called The Burj Al Arab. Despite having 39% of its total height made up of unusable space, it is one of the highest hotels in the world and is managed by the Jumeirah hotel company. Burj Al Arab is situated on a man-made island that is 280 meters (920 feet) away from Jumeirah Beach and is connected to the mainland by a narrow, private bridge. The building's form is intended to imitate a ship's sail. At a height of 210 meters (689 feet) above the earth, it has a helipad next to the roof.

The Jumeirah Group is in charge of running the hotel. The hotel features 199 luxurious suites, each with eight dedicated staff members and a butler service available around-the-clock. The smallest suite takes about 169 m<sup>2</sup> (1,820 sq ft), while the largest suite occupies 780 m<sup>2</sup> (8,400 sq ft).

East and West are contrasted in the design of the suites. White columns have a strong presence. Mosaic tile designs are used to decorate bathrooms.

The Royal Suite is ranked number 12 on CNN Go's list of the top 15 most expensive hotel suites in the world, with a nightly rate of US$24,000.

Unquestionably one of Dubai's most well-known monuments and tourist destinations, the Burj Al Arab Jumeirah is famed for its "seven-star status." The opulent, all-suite hotel has a number of exquisite restaurants, stunning beaches, and the huge Burj Al Arab Terrace.

The Burj Al Arab has hosted a coveted guest list of VIPs and celebrities from all over the world since its opening in 1999, helping to establish Dubai as a top destination for luxury travel. The sail-shaped structure, which is 321 meters tall and was constructed on its own island, offers visitors an incredible hotel room view of the Arabian Gulf.

It's hardly surprising that the Burj Al Arab Jumeirah, along with many five-star hotels, is frequently regarded as one of the greatest locations to stay in Dubai given its gold interiors, opulent suites, and some of Dubai's best restaurants. In reality, guests don't need to travel far to understand why it is frequently referred to as a "seven-star" hotel. The custom spiral chandelier, which was designed by Czech artist Sans Souci and hangs in the recently renovated lobby, is mesmerizing. It is made of 210 crystal tubes and weighs about 450 kilograms.

Visitors have a choice between Al Mahara, an underwater restaurant and aquarium, and SAL's breathtaking vistas. A fleet of Rolls-Royce vehicles is available on the forecourt, and Roger Federer, Anthony Joshua, and Tiger Woods have all visited the famed helipad.

The Burj Al Arab Terrace offers 10,000 sq m of outdoor space for poolside sunbathing for even more tranquility. The deck, which is 100 meters from the hotel's base and allows guests to lounge over the lake, is covered in sunlight.

Features Of Burj Al Arab

Due to its complexity and extravagant design, this magnificent hotel has been designated as the only seven-star hotel in the entire globe.

- At 590 feet, the Burj Al Arab's atrium lobby is the tallest building in the world (180 m).
- The atrium, which is surrounded by golden columns and features a beautiful central fountain whose water arches dance in unexpected spurts over 138 feet (42 meters) into the air, is bathed in warm natural light.
- The Cascade Waterfall at the Burj Al Arab uses fiber optics and highly atomized water to provide a special kaleidoscope effect.
- As water and fog flow downward through the glass and stone-filled steps, the water gracefully arches in a synchronized pattern.
- Three aquariums—two on either side of the main hotel lobby and a circular tank in the Al Mahara restaurant—at the Burj Al Arab hotel house about 50 different species of fish.
- The Milky Way-shaped ceiling of Junsui Lounge is decorated in over 29,000 Swarovski crystals.
- One of Burj Al Arab's most recognizable characteristics is the cantilevered platform next to the roof, which hovers at a height of 689 feet (210 m) above ground and serves as a helipad.
- On the exact same helipad, Tiger Woods once played golf.
- Al Muntaha, a restaurant with stunning aerial views of the Persian Gulf and Dubai city, is part of the extended building and is accessible through a panoramic elevator.
- Chef Francky Semblat has taken over the Al Muntaha restaurant, which serves experimental modern French cuisine.
- Al Mahara is a restaurant that can be reached via a fictitious submarine expedition in addition to the restaurant in the sky. It is located beneath the ocean.
- One of the priciest hotels in the world, Al Mahara's massive seawater aquarium can hold up to 261530.3 gal (990,000 l) of seawater.
- The Terrace of the Burj Al Arab was constructed in a Finnish shipbuilding and yacht facility and transported to Dubai in six pieces.
- Since then, 10 million mosaic tiles in shades of gold and azure have been added to the two pools.

Why Is Burj Al Arab Special?

Three new hotel structures in Dubai, the Rose Tower, the JW Marriott Marquis Hotel, and the Gevora Hotel, have surpassed the Burj Al Arab as the tallest hotel in the world.

- It is currently Dubai's fifth-tallest hotel. With a height of 1,053 feet, it is among the top 10 highest hotels in the world (excluding mixed-use buildings) (321 m).
- The Burj Al Arab is located on a manmade island that has been reclaimed.
- The Burj Al Arab, the only skyscraper in the world, is situated 918 feet (280 meters) off Jumeirah Beach in the Persian Gulf. It is connected to the mainland by a secret curved bridge.
- It is among the most opulent hotels in the entire globe.
- Suites start at $1000 per night and go up to almost $15,000 per night, with the Royal Suite being the most expensive at $24,000 per night. This is intriguing because it is one of the most expensive hotel suites ever.
- The Royal Suite is so opulent that it is solely reserved for the most important people.
- For the second year in a row, the Talise Spa at the grand hotel has won the 'Best Luxury Hotel Spa' title in the 'World Luxury Spa Awards Global Winners' category.
- The Burj Al Arab in Dubai was created by Atkins, a multidisciplinary consultancy under the direction of architect Tom Wright.
- The hotel was designed by British architect Tom Wright and opened in its current location in 1999.
- Many other tall buildings and towers throughout the globe, such as the Vasco da Gama Tower in Lisbon and the Trump Ocean Club International Hotel in Panama City, have been designed as a result of its distinctive shape.
- There are so many records that the hotel in Dubai has broken.
- The Burj Al Arab, the world's highest all-suite hotel, broke the Guinness World Record for the most expensive drink in 2008 with a price tag of 27,321 AED.
- In 2016, it also produced the largest caviar tin in the world, containing 38 lb (17 kg) of Empress caviar, the only completely certified organic caviar from natively grown sturgeon in the world.
- When entering the bar or restaurants at The Burj Al Arab, a smart casual or smart elegant dress code is largely enforced.
- While women should dress modestly by donning a suit, dress, or long skirt, males should dress conservatively by donning a collared shirt, full-length slacks, and closed-toed shoes.
- About $125 is spent on the lunch buffet at Al Iwan. Children aged 4 to 11 only pay $63, though.

Zalala Beach - Quelimane

The Zalala beach is located on the Mozambican coast approximately 35 km from the city of Quelimane. The tourist area of Zalala beach is characterized by a coastal plain of marine accumulation and vegetation covered by ironwood, having a specific characteristic of a beach that offers sun and fresh air. This beach has a prominent and strong potential for water sports.

Namuli Mountains Range - Gurué

The Namuli Mount reaches a height of 2,419 meters. Located in the Gurué city, 350 km from the city of Quelimane, it is the second highest peak in Mozambique. It features an exuberant green landscape of tea plantations and provides an altitude climate of exceptional quality. It has excellent conditions for the implantation of tourist enterprises segmented for Agritourism, landscape contemplation and excursions.

The carnival

The Zambézia Province is also known as the stage for the carnival celebrations in Mozambique and the peak of this celebration takes place annually in February with duration of one week. The celebration of Carnival is one of the most important cultural events in the Quelimane city because of its liveliness. The carnival environment is also an opportune environment for business.

Gurué Waterfalls

The waterfall has crystalline waters and is located 354 km from the Quelimane city, a few meters from the source of the Licungo River in Montes Namúli.

Old Cathedral

Located in the Quelimane city, the capital of the Zambézia Province, it is a magnificent building with an austere layout, built from 1776 to 1786, and contains the tombs of leaders from the colonial era. Declared by the Government as a Historic Monument; because its existence is intrinsically associated with the secular history of the Quelimane city in particular and of Zambézia in general.

Muzo Hot Springs

It is located in the Maganja da Costa village, 185 km from the provincial capital. These springs occur on the surface near the Maganja da Costa village. This source has a water temperature above 45° Celsius. Additionally, at provincial level there are other hot springs.

VIETNAM

The natural beauty and cultural variety of Vietnam are astoundingly diverse.

The country of Vietnam has a long history and a multicultural population that includes more than 50 ethnic minority groups, which makes travel there rich in cultural heritage. The scenery ranges from jagged peaks seen from winding mountain passes down to verdant paddy fields painted every shade of green in the palette.

Even the most slothful can experience nature up close on a cruise to Halong Bay, Vietnam's most famous natural tourist attraction. Outdoor enthusiasts can get their teeth into the countryside within the numerous national parks, where hiking, biking, and kayaking are popular activities.

The big cities hum with contemporary activity and offer plenty of opportunity to bite into Vietnam's delectable culinary delights, while the rural parts are filled with magnificent landscapes.

This intriguing nation is one of Southeast Asia's most undervalued travel destinations and is full of surprises. Our list of the top Vietnam tourist destinations might help you organize your sightseeing.

HALONG BAY

Halong Bay's karst seascape is one of the top sites in the world to visit for breath-taking sea views and is a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

This harbor in the Gulf of Tonkin contains thousands of limestone islets that have been worn over millennia by wind and water into sharp pinnacles.

This is ideal cruising region because a boat is the finest way to view the bay's splendor. To truly see Halong Bay's famous sights, choose at least one overnight vacation because a day trip falls short.

The Hang Sung Sot, which has three enormous caverns, and the Hang Dao Go, which has incredibly bizarre stalactites and stalagmites, are only two of the many caves in the bay that may be accessed.

However, for the majority of travelers, the pleasure is simply driving through the karsts and taking in the ever-changing view of the pinnacles as you go.

HOI AN

Hoi An, a charming city in Vietnam, has the greatest preserved traditional architecture overall.

When Hoi An was a significant meeting place for Japanese and Chinese merchants who came for the local silks in the 15th century, the old town area was a delight to visit since it was crammed full of well-preserved merchant buildings.

You can get a sense of these times because many of the ancient merchant houses have been made accessible to the public. The best has to be Tan Ky House from the 17th century, which has remarkable architectural and ornamental features.

The charming Japanese Bridge, which is located at the western end of Tran Phu Street, serves as the main emblem of Hoi An. Close by, the Assembly Hall of the Fujian Chinese Congregation is the most elaborately decorated temple in the old town.

Although the town is full of little pagodas and museums, the best way to experience Hoi An's appeal is to stroll through the narrow streets of the old quarter and take in its beautifully preserved facades.

MALDIVES

The Maldives islands, which were left to the whims of the gentle, lapping Indian Ocean, have undoubtedly been sculpted and formed into one of the world's most iconically gorgeous tropical locales.

The entire country can be found strewn across the turquoise oceans, some distance from the Indian subcontinent, from the powdery beaches of the northern atolls to the earthy sea shacks and fishing hamlets of the southern isles.

The majority of travelers will arrive at the vibrant city of Male, which is crammed onto its own tiny isle and has huge mosques and markets smelling of spices.

The majority of travelers will arrive at the vibrant city of Male, which is crammed onto its own tiny isle and has huge mosques and markets smelling of spices.

The majority also don't stop for very long before boarding seaplanes or boats to head to the resort of their choice, where infinity pools and over-water cabanas are the norm.

More recently, the Maldives have started to change from a popular honeymoon destination to a surfing, adventure, and backpacking destination. It seems as though paradise is now accessible to everyone thanks to new local guesthouses and the discovery of rolling waves.

FUVAHMULAH

Compared to the other Maldivian atolls, Fuvahmulah promises something a little unique.

To begin with, this dot on the Indian Ocean map is isolated on its own atoll and doesn't actually have any close neighbors.

It is also occasionally dotted with inland lakes, which is uncommon in this low-lying terrain.

While the sandbanks around famed Banging Beach provide some crashing waves and cooling salt spray (a change from the typical peaceful lapping lagoons), the area's proximity to the equator results in hot weather all year long.

KUNFUNADHOO ISLAND

The lavish resort on Kunfunadhoo Island, which is consistently praised as the most extravagant place to stay in the nation, is likely to satisfy your desire for the mythical elegance and romance of the Maldives.

Visitors approach through a large hall made of thatched wood that is concealed by coconut palm groves.

Then it's either out to the beaches where candles flicker in the humid sea breeze or onto the cocktail decks that soar above the jungle on stilts.

It's simple to understand why this one is so well-liked when you consider the presence of a few infinity pools, swim-up bars, and the opportunity to have a meal on a small, private sandbank while listening only to the waves of the Indian Ocean.

LATVIA

In Northern Europe's Baltic region, Latvia is a nation. One of the Baltic nations, it shares a maritime boundary with Sweden to the west and is bordered by Estonia to the north, Lithuania to the south, Russia to the east, Belarus to the southeast, and Belarus to the southeast. The population of Latvia, which has a total area of 64,589 km<sup>2</sup> (24,938 sq mi), is 1.9 million. The nation experiences mild seasonal weather. Riga is the nation's capital and largest city. Speaking one of the two remaining Baltic languages, Latvian, Latvians are members of the Balt ethnolinguistic group. With over 25% of the population, Russians are the most noticeable minority in the nation.

The nation offers a mixture of picturesque sites and urban attractions, notably the capital city of Riga. In addition to beautiful scenery and a variety of outdoor activities, Latvia also has national parks and waterfalls. The only way to escape the competition between beaches, forests, and ancient villages is to visit all the top destinations in Latvia.

RIGA

Riga is undoubtedly one of the great urban jewels of the entire Baltic region, and should be at the top of the list for any first-time travelers making their way over the sea.

The city, which spans the Daugava River's channels on the country's northern border, is known for its intricate Old Town, which is regarded as one of Europe's most attractive.

The famously rebuilt House of the Blackheads stands eminently exquisite after the turmoil of Soviet rule over the city, while the cobbled lanes are dominated by the enormous St. Peter's Church's dagger-like spires.

In the city's peripheral districts, masterworks line Alberta iela's streets, making Art Nouveau the style du jour.

Of course, Riga is also known for its famed nightlife, which is comprised of a variety of hedonistic dive bars and energetic clubs that attract both locals and stag and hen groups in droves.

LIGATNE

Source: www.thecrazytourist.com

Visitors who enjoy hiking, mountain biking, camping, riding horses, viewing animals, and Nordic skiing come in droves to Ligatne, a little village engulfed in forests.

Visitors to Gutmanala, which serves as the entrance to the renowned Gauja National Park, can anticipate discovering striking sandstone gorges, fir-forested escarpments of Devonian rock, the caves of Gutmanala, the stunning contours of the Erglu Cliffs, and numerous nature trails that wind deep into the nearby woodlands.

The town of Ligatne is modest and tranquil, with rows of charming cottages with corrugated roofs and the oddly out-of-place vestiges of a paper-making industrial boom.

SWEDEN

Sweden is a Scandinavian nation with thousands of coastal islands and inland lakes, along with vast boreal forests and glaciated mountains. Its principal cities, eastern capital Stockholm and southwestern Gothenburg and Malmö, are all coastal. Stockholm is built on 14 islands. It has more than 50 bridges, as well as the medieval old town, Gamla Stan, royal palaces and museums such as open-air Skansen.

Sweden is well-known throughout the world for a variety of items, including the pickled herring, Saab and Volvo automobiles, and the IKEA home improvement store. It is equally well-known for its breathtaking beauty, charming fishing villages, reindeer-friendly status, and never-ending summer heat.

Sweden is home to many vibrant timber structures, traditional huts, stone fortresses and churches, as well as some pretty avant-garde modern constructions. Sweden has both hiking trails and art museums, depending on what you're looking for.

UPPSALA

Since the 12th century, Uppsala, which is 70 kilometers (44 miles) north of Stockholm, has served as Sweden's spiritual hub. Uppsala was well-known for its Norse god idols before the advent of Christianity. The largest cathedral in Scandinavia is located in Uppsala, which serves as the archbishop of Sweden's residence. Education is significant in this area as well, and Uppsala University, one of the oldest universities in Scandinavia, was established in 1477.

The medieval part of the city is situated west of the Fyris River, which flows through it. Here, the skyline is dominated by Uppsala Castle and the cathedral. Visit the botanical garden close to the castle since Uppsala was the home of 18th-century botanist Carl Linnaeus.

SWEDISH LAPLAND

The best spot to travel in Sweden if you're looking for wilderness adventure is Swedish Lapland. In the far north, above the Arctic Circle, where it is perpetually summer. Lapland is a destination for hikers, canoers, and wildlife watchers. Native Sami people live in hardy Swedish Lapland.

They inhabit vast forests and desolate tundra. Driving the 359-km (223-mile) Wilderness Way from the canoeing hub at Stomsund to the terminus at Vilhelmina, a church town, via Fatmomakke, where you'll see traditional wooden cabins, is an excellent way to get a feel for the area. Reindeer hides are available for purchase in Jokkmokk, the Sami capital.

DENMARK

Jutland Peninsula and many islands make up the Scandinavian nation of Denmark. The resund bridge connects it to neighbouring Sweden. Royal palaces, the vibrant Nyhavn port, the Tivoli amusement park, and the well-known "Little Mermaid" monument may all be found in Copenhagen, the country's capital. Hans Christian Andersen's hometown is Odense, which has a historic center with cobblestone streets and half-timbered homes.

Scandinavian countries start in Denmark. Over the years, a lot has changed. Formerly famed for its fearsome warriors, the Vikings, it is today a tranquil modern nation where cutting-edge architecture coexists with historical structures. You'll visit charming fishing communities that can trace their roots to the Vikings, so you should try their most well-known fish, the herring, possibly at a smorrebrd. You may visit palaces and castles in Denmark, the country of Hans Christian Andersen, where perhaps some of his fairy stories actually did come true.

BORNHOLM

Source: en.m.wikipedia.org

Bornholm, a Baltic Sea island that is closer to the borders of Poland and Sweden than Denmark, is well-known for its glass and pottery. Four of the island's historic churches are circular, and several villages have charming windmills. The island, which was controlled by both the Germans and the Soviets during World War II, is renowned for its breathtaking landscape, which includes beaches, forested mountains, rocky sea cliffs, and lush valleys.

From Sweden and Denmark, ferries can take you there. Both Neolithic sun temples and medieval forts can be found here. Hornet Flight, a thriller by Ken Follett, was similarly set in Bornholm.

SKAGEN

Source: sunrise.maplogs.com

The northernmost city of Denmark, Skagen, serves as both the nation's principal fishing port and one of the most visited locations in Denmark, drawing two million tourists a year. Impressionist painters loved painting the picturesque seascapes, long sandy beaches, and fisherman in this beautiful community in the 19th century. Early 1900s Danish monarchy spent their summers here; Skagen still draws affluent visitors today, including sailors from all around Scandinavia.

Try some herring here since Skagen, where the Baltic and North Seas converge, is known for its herring fishery. One of Denmark's oldest lighthouses is located in the city.
